

MANNREPORT™

Metro Spire Celebrates Grand Opening Catering to International Investors

Over 100 international real estate developers, landlords, bankers and mortgage brokers recently attended a cocktail reception to celebrate Metro Spire's new real estate brokerage office on 3 West 35th Street. The first annual Gala, which was designated to introduce the company formally to investors "also attracted many of New York's Persian landlords with whom the company retains strong relations", said Daniel Roubeni, president and co-founder of the firm. "Metro Spire maintains a sophisticated boutique presence which caters to the needs of seasoned investors as well as first time apartment buyers and renters alike," according to Joseph Benz, Metro Spire's General Manager. "Our agents deal with a wide range of clientele of diverse nationalities and cultural backgrounds. Therefore most of the staff is multilingual, speaking languages such as German, Italian, Spanish, French, Hebrew, Farsi and Hindi." The company which was recently admitted to the Real Estate Board of New York intends to hold several networking and educational events a year to foster the interaction between New York and its roster of international investors.

Jessica Eliasi, Investment Sales; Alexandra Roubeni, Residential Sales; Adina Ostad, Luxury Apartments; Joseph Benz, General Manager; Anu Lakhera, Investment Sales

Michael Cohen, Rossmoregate USA Inc.; Alexandra Roubeni, Metro Spire

View of New Metro Spire's 5th Avenue Offices

Alan Phillips; Michael Cohen, Rossmoregate USA; Elise Leve Wittenberg, Manhattan Mortgage; Daniel Roubeni, Metro Spire

Guest, Adina Ostad, Metro Spire; Daniel Roubeni, Metro Spire; Mr. & Mrs. Baharam Kamali, Kamali Organization